ABOUT ME

I am currently an undergraduate student in special education at the Institute of Education and Research, University of Rajshahi. My academic journey is driven by a deep commitment to inclusive education and creating meaningful change in the lives of children with diverse needs. My work intersects human rights, inclusive education, social equity, community empowerment and sustainable development through ensuring education for all. All fueled by a growing interest in educational research. I aspire to pursue higher studies in special and inclusive education or related educational fields to contribute to a more inclusive and equitable education system, both in Bangladesh and globally.
